The T. S. Lawton Trial—Accidents Fatal and Otherwise—Drunkards Exposed to Death—Notice Death in Trigg—Little Girl Burned to Death.

Tom Lawton on Trial.

Capt. Thos. E. Lawton, the pension attorney of this city, went to Owensboro yesterday to stand his trial on an indictment charging him with fraud in procuring a pension for a negro woman named Eliza Brown. The case has taken a political turn, more or less, and Capt. Lawton's cause has been warmly espoused by most of the Republican leaders about town. Among those who went with him to Owensboro were Messrs. E. P.
Campbell, H. W. Breathitt, J. P.
Frowse, Chas. Frowse, Gus Breathitt, Spencer Leavell, col., and others.
W. E. Campbell, W. T. Vaughan, J.
T. Smith and others went along as witnesses, as well as several attorneys in the case.

A Distressing Accident.

The little thirteen-year-old daughter of Frank Ivy, at Barnesville, and the mainstay of a family of younger children, her mother having died a few years ago, was burned so horribly Wednesday afternoon that death ensued in a few hours after the sad accident occurred. The girl's clothing caught fire from the grate before which she was standing, and before she could obtain assistance, all her clothing with the exception of her shoes were burned from her body.
The father and sorrowing little brothers and sisters have the sympathy of the entire community.

Killed By An L. & N. Train.

Isaiah J. Eakins, a prominent and well-to-do citizen of Robards, a station six miles north of Sebree, was killed by a passenger train Friday.
Eakins was a passenger on the train and had spent the day in Henderson transacting business. He was busy conversing with a friend when the train reached the station and did not step off until it was again in motion.
By some means he was thrown under the wheels and both legs were crushed off. He lingered for four hours in great agony, before death came to his relief. He was about fifty years old and leaves a family.

Rigger Captured.

C. D. Kiger, under a twenty years' sentence for murder, who escaped from the Nashville jail several weeks ago, has been captured and returned to prison. He was arrested at Hillsboro, Tenn. At the time of Kiger's escape three brother murders also got out, and two of them are still at large. Kiger is known in this city, having worked here as a printer some years ago.

Pink Dunn's Sudden Death.

Mr. L. P. Dunn, a prominent Trigg county farmer, died very suddenly of paralysis at his home, near Dorcy, on the 20th inst. About noon Mr.
Dunn was stricken with paralysis and became speechless and entirely helpless, dying in a few hours. He was about fifty years old and leaves a family consisting of wife and six children. He was one of Trigg's best and most prosperous citizens.

Broke his Collar Bone.

An unknown man while wandering around the coke ovens at Earlington one night last week, carelessly fell from a bridge and had his shoulder bone broken. He claimed to have fallen from Kelly, this county, and after his injuries were dressed, he was sent to that place.

Blow Down a Barn.

During the wind storm Friday night Mr. J. T. Powell, a farmer living near Trenton, had a barn blown down and two horses were killed.
Mr. Powell's loss is several hundred dollars.

Liquor Did the Work.

James Landrum, while drunk, fell from his horse near Bowling Green and froze to death in sight of his home Friday night.

Four children of Andrew Cole, in Lawrence county, are under treatment at Louisa for hydrophobia.
One was bitten by a mad dog in 1889.

Sam Jones is now in Memphis and Bright Little Girl's Sad Death.

Howell, Ky. Jan. 27.—As the result of severe burns, Juanita, the four year old daughter of J. A. Giles, a farmer living two miles from this place, died this morning at 7 o'clock.
The little girl was in a room with only her little brother and sister, children not very much older than she, and having spilled some water on her apron, she held it before the grate to dry when it caught on fire and in a moment the little child was enveloped in flames. A young man in an adjoining room, hearing the screams of the children, rushed to the rescue, and by wrapping his coat around the child, soon extinguishing the flames, but not before she had inhaled the flames and her face was burned almost beyond recognition. The unfortunate accident occurred about 6
p. m. yesterday, and the little sufferer lingered in terrible agony until this
a. m. as above stated, when death came to her relief.

Juanita was a bright winsome child, a general favorite with all who knew her, and her grief stricken parents have the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement.

CAMILLE.

THE BULLDOG.

Has Been Cultivated Until It Is a Homesick Luxury.

There has been recently some adverse English comment on the American taste in bulldogs. It is intimated that it is a feature of Anglomani-a and not to be compared with the genuine English love for the upst-ake of his kind. The American loves bulldogs as he loves his house flowers.
He buys only champions. Yet without his usual sentiment he buys the champion when he is going down hill.
The one instance given of when he really knew a good thing is that of the Badgerbury Lion.

For this dog there is an English authority that its owner was offered $1,700 by a New Yorker six months ago. The offer was refused. The dog afterward came to this country for sale. Brievenmar also came to this country, the price being $500. His Lordship, a descendant of Don Pedro, the most aristocratic of all bulldogs, is also in the United States. Don Pedro is 13 years old, and it seems that the average age of a bulldog is only 10 years. The bulldog in England is after all an exotic. It is an arrangement of "man and Providence."

This is admitted. The center's delight and the dockers' darling was very different from 20 years ago.
The bulldog's nose has been gradually retired, until it is scarcely more than an amusing suggestion. His under jaw has been brought up and has assumed the prominence that really belongs to the nose. Philanthropic people have commented from time to time on the propriety of interposing on the part of the nose. It is said, and not without reason, that the nose is a sort of a purchase point in seizing hold, and moreover, that the upper jaw being firmly retired in the development of the nose the lower jaw is not properly supported in its business of holding on. The bulldog was once intended by nature for a useful life.
He is now a creature of luxury, a lady's pet.

Sam Frankel to the Front.

If there are any special bargains being offered by the merchants of Hopkinsville, you will always find them set forth in detail in the columns of the Kentuckian, the medium long universally recognized as the accepted battleground of local advertisers. In this issue Sam Frankel has chartered a whole page to outline the extent to which he has sashed prices in a great Shovel-Em-Out sale to be inaugurated to-morrow. His quotations speak for themselves and are worthy of the careful perusal of our readers. This house is the latest successor of one of Hopkinsville's oldest business firms on the corner of Main and Eighth streets.

From the Princeton Banner:
—"Last Monday Mr. Joe P. Smith had a fall, which may result seriously, at his new building on College street. He was walking on the lower elevator, when he lost his footing and fell through to the open cellar beneath. His face struck the sharp edge of a joist and his nose cut entirely through just below the end of the cartilage. His upper lip was cut through and he received other injuries. He has been suffering greatly since the accident, but is now getting along as well as could be expected."

Mrs. Aphie Pryor, wife of Chief Jus-

Its Fame Will Live.

The World's Columbian Exposition marked the climax of human achievement. It will live in memory of the crowning glory of modern times. No other development of the closing century can compare with it in practical benefit to mankind.

Who that exhibited is not proud of it? Who that failed to exhibit does not regret the omission? The former are the people of to-day. The latter are relics of the past.

No honor so high as that embodied in an award at the fair. Competition was world-wide, the fruits of ripest experience and noblest endeavors were submitted for examination.

Honest tribunals, composed of eminent scientists, examined and passed upon the claims of exhibitors. Their judgement based on inquiry and justice, proves conclusively the value of any article they commend.

Their approval was stamped on

It received the highest award at the fair from a jury headed by the Chief Chemist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Dr. Price's was officially commended for highest leavening power, purity, keeping qualities and general excellence.

COBRA AND ITS VENOM.

Interesting Observations on the Deadliest of All Reptiles.

Thousands of More Persons Die Annually in India from its Attacks—It Can Actually Kill Without Biting.

Mr. G. R. O'Reilly shows a remarkable familiarity with snakes. In Popular Science Monthly he writes about the cobra, among the very interesting facts he tells about this, the deadliest of all snakes, is that it is able to secrete its venom from the ground to the height of a man's face.

Every year 10,000 or more persons lose their lives in India from the bite of the cobra. This has happened from time out of mind, and there is no immediate prospect of stopping it.

There are several varieties of cobra, including Naja tripudians of India, Naja haje of north Africa, and Naja haje of south Africa. These cobras do not exist in other countries. They vary in color from brown to black, but are usually banded with light and dark rings. At full growth they are usually four feet in length and two inches in diameter, but they sometimes reach a length of six feet.

Venomous snakes are roughly divided by Mr. O'Reilly into two classes—viperae and elapidae. The rattlesnake belongs to the former and the cobra to the latter. The head in the rattlesnake is broad and flat and the neck very thin. In the cobra the head, neck and body are of about the same thickness until the tail is reached.

The cobra is very timid. The least motion alarms him. If you stand before a cobra and move your right and left hands up and down it will strike repeatedly to the right and left, following your motions. This habit accounts for the belief that the cobra loves music and dances to it. It is the player's motions which cause the snake to dance. The cobra is very quick-sighted, but practically without hearing, as its head is entirely covered by the skin in the place where the ears would be.

So nervous is the cobra that it will strike at a moving object before it has

HENRY C. HANSBROUGH.

North Dakota's Senior Senator is a Newspaper Man.

The senior senator from the state of North Dakota, Hon. Henry C. Hansbrough, began his career as a printer, and soon passed into the profession of journalism, from which he graduated as a statesman. He passed the days of his boyhood in the little town of Prairie du Rocher, which is situated in Randolph county, Ill. It was here that he was born on the 20th day of January, 1848, and where he received his common-school education. From this place he removed, in 1867, with his parents to California, in which latter state he picked up the trade of a printer. Two years later he began the publication of a daily paper at San Jose, and later became connected with the San Francisco Chronicle, with which he remained until the year 1878.

SENATOR H. C. HANSBROUGH, N. D.

Returning east Mr. Hansbrough published for two years a paper at Baraboo, Wis. Removing in 1882 to what was then the territory of Dakota, he continued to engage in journalism. It was about this time that he became prominent as an advocate of the republican policy of dividing the territory and admitting both sections to the union. He was twice elected mayor of Devil's Lake. In 1888 he was chosen as a delegate to the republican national convention at Chicago, and was there chosen to act as national committee man for North Dakota. Shortly after this he was elected by his district as a representative in the Fifty-first congress, and in 1891 the state legislature sent him to the United States senate as a republican, to succeed Gilbert A. Pierce. Senator Hansbrough's term will expire March 8, 1897.

NERVE-TRYING BUSINESS.

A Shoe Salesman Tells of His Troubles with Women Customers.

"I do not believe," said a salesman in a retail shoe house on State street, where a vast number of shoes are sold every day and principally to ladies, "that any business in the world can try a man's nerve and patience like this. The best and sweetest tempered woman in the world becomes a cold-blooded cynic the moment she starts to buy a pair of shoes. She has a fixed idea in her head that she wears a certain size and any attempt of a salesman to convince her that she wears a size larger is regarded as an affront. I have actually had women walk away from me and ask the manager to send some one else to wait on them because I showed them by measuring the outline of their feet, drawn on a piece of paper, that they were mistaken in their

"I remember particularly one lady who insisted that she wore a 3 A, and had never worn anything else in her life. The shoe she had on was a 4 A, although marked one size smaller. I was imprudent enough to demonstrate this to her, and she took the shoes from my hand and walked with one stocking foot to another salesman. Yes—

today I had a customer who tried on fourteen pairs of shoes, and then did not buy, because she could not get her foot into the size that she declared was her fit. By the time we are ready to go home we feel sore enough to make vinegar out of oil by looking at it.

Money Fate of Hands and Fingers.

An engineering journal has collected some interesting statistics from the tables of a German miners' insurance company. If a man loses both hands he is registered as entailing a 100 per cent. loss. In other words, he has been deprived of the ability to earn a livelihood. The loss of the right hand depreciates the value of an individual as a worker 70 to 80 per cent., while the loss of the left hand leaves him with only 50 to 70 per cent. of his original earning capacity. The thumb is taken as playing a part equal to 50 to 80 per cent. as a bread winner, the first finger of the right hand is put at 40 to 50 per cent., and of the left hand at from 30 to 40 per cent., and the middle finger of the right hand is worth from 10 to 20 per cent. The value of the third finger is put down as from 7 to 10 per cent., while that of the little finger is estimated at 5 to 10 per cent. These values may appear arbitrary, but it is explained that the apparent inconsistency in the rating is occasioned by the difference in the trades followed by the injured ones.

FACTS ABOUT THE SEA.

Dr. Young estimates the mean depth of the Atlantic at about 18,000 feet.

The saline matter held in solution in sea water comprises one thirtieth of its weight.

The water of the Mediterranean contains a greater portion of salt than that of the ocean.

The sea-cypress of a kind of coral, sometimes has 6,000 to 10,000 animals on a single branch.

Nearly three tenths of the world's drainage, directly or indirectly, pours into the Atlantic ocean.

It is estimated that the water of the whole ocean contains in solution over 3,000,000 tons of pure silver.

It is estimated that two years are required for the gulf water to travel from Florida to the coast of Norway.

The wider bottom of the ocean is covered with a layer of calcareous ooze, mingled with the skeletons and other animal remains of its inhabitants.

If it were not for the salts of the ocean the whole sea would soon become a mass of corruption, owing to the decay of the organic matter it contains.

Some people are too trusting for their world. At a recent trial a prisoner entered a plea of "not guilty," when one of the jury put on his hat and started for the door. The judge called him back and informed him that he could not leave until the case was tried. "Pled!" cried the juror; "why he acknowledges that he is not guilty."

MODELS OF WARSHIPS.

On Exhibition in the Navy Department at Washington.

A Choice Collection of Battleships, Armored Cruisers, Torpedoed Monitors, Harbor Defense Mines and Gunboats in Miniature.

[Special Washington Letter.] West of the white house, and overlooking it, is a large granite and marble edifice known as the state, war and navy building. It is by many regarded as second only to the capitol for beauty and approximation of architectural perfection. Beneath its roof are the offices and subordinate bureaus of the secretary of state, the secretary of war and the secretary of the navy. The secretary of state occupies the south wing of the building. The secretary of war sits in the central part of the west corridor, while in the east wing, distant, but immediately opposite, is the office of the secretary of the navy. The entrance of the office of the master spirits of the army and navy are at either end of the corridor running east and west through the center of the building, upon the second floor.

Visitors to the navy department are always interested in the rows of glass cases which occupy the main corridor near the office of the secretary of the navy. They contain, in perfect, highly polished and burnished models of Uncle Sam's crack battleships and cruisers. The custom of putting models of the different ships of our navy on exhibition in the navy department was inaugurated about 1880, and new models have been added from time to time until there are now fifteen in all. The collection comprises representations of first and second-class battleships, armored cruisers, protected cruisers, single and double-turreted monitors, harbor defense rams, light-draught gunboats, and last, but not least, the old sailing vessels. There are the models of the gunboats Yorktown and Petrel, the monitor Miantonomoh; the protected cruisers Charleston, Baltimore, Newark and Hancock; the dynamite cruiser Vesuvius; the steel-armored turreted battleships Texas, Indiana, Massachusetts and Oregon; the steel-armored torpedoed cruisers Maine, New York and Monterey; the steel harbor defense ram Katabdin; and the celebrated wooden cruiser Kearsarge, recently lost on the rocks of Roncador reef.

Some of these models were made by skilled mechanics at the Washington navy yard. But the models of the Yorktown, Hancock, Miantonomoh, Charleston, Petrel, Kearsarge, Newark and Katabdin were built by the model-maker of the bureau of construction and repair of the navy department, who has his shop in the basement of the building. Owing to the fact that the workmanship on the models is very fine and delicate and that the material used in their construction is the best obtainable, the expense incurred in making one of them is large, so the money to pay for the labor and material is taken from the regular appropriation made by congress for the navy department contingent fund.

All of the models in the collection are made on a scale of one-quarter of an inch to the foot, so that they range in length from four to seven feet, most of them being about five feet long and two or three feet high, varying, of course, according to the size of the big ships. The models are such exact representations of the originals that not even a rope in the rigging is omitted in making them. They have miniature of the guns, comprising the battery of each vessel and every other part of the construction, so that one who sees the model in the case can form an exact idea of how the ship appears when afloat at sea. To protect them from the dust and the hands and fingers of curious visitors the models are kept in large glass cases which rest on beautiful oak and walnut stands. The guns comprising the battery of each vessel are made of nickel and are finished to a high polish. Little tiny lifeboats of the vessels are also on the models and are made of cedar wood, varnished and painted.

Outside of the cases containing the models are cards giving a description of each vessel and part of its history. The cards state the size, type, propulsion, kind of hull, displacement and condition; whether building or in the service. Naturally the more modern triple screw propulsion armored cruisers attract most attention from visitors on account of their magnificence. But the model of the wooden ship Kearsarge always attracts attention, and everything in connection with her history is regarded with the keenest interest. Undoubtedly the handsomest model in the collection is that of the three sister ships Indiana, Massachusetts and Oregon. The card states that these are to be first-class battleships, and that the Indians and Massachusetts are building at the yards of Cramp & Sons at Philadelphia, while the Oregon is being constructed at the Union Iron works, San Francisco. These ships have steel hulls with a displacement of 10,000 tons each. They will be of twin screw propulsion, and when completely fitted out, each will carry a main battery of sixteen guns.

One of the recent additions to the collection is the model of the second-class battleship Texas which is now being built at the Norfolk navy yard. The model of the Hancock is another which is viewed with interest by visitors. This vessel is used exclusively as a practice ship for the Annapolis naval cadets. Before being graduated from the academy the cadets must have had three years' actual service at sea, and the Hancock is the vessel upon which they always take their cruises. Every ambitious young naval cadet who visits Washington makes it a point to call at the navy department, and when in the building he views the model of the ship which is to be his home for three years at sea. The Hancock is of steel hull, with twin screw propulsion, and has a battery of four guns.

No matter what hour of the day one may visit the navy department, curious tourists may be seen standing before the miniature types of our modern navy. Many of them have note books in their hands, jotting down enough concerning the descriptions of the models to enable them to keep green in their memory the sights which they have seen in the national capital. But when you make a trip to Washington you may see yourself that trouble, by simply calling upon the chief clerk of the navy department whose office is near by, and over the door of whose room you may see the printed and painted sign "Chief Clerk." He is a very courteous gentleman and will hand you a little pamphlet giving descriptions of the vessels and steel engravings of them. These pamphlets you will find better reminders of what you have seen, and the dear folks and neighbors at home will have a better understanding of what you have seen, then you can possibly convey to them in words.

The visitor can also readily obtain information which will prove interesting and valuable by asking questions of the gentlemen who can always be seen in one corner of the hall, just outside of the door of the secretary of the navy, and partly surrounded by the cases containing the models. They have chairs and a writing table there, and are very busy apparently; but they usually have time, to explain a few things particularly to gentlemen and ladies whom they recognize as strangers here. They are reporters for our daily newspapers, and there they congregate to receive information for publication concerning naval affairs.

Whoever has opportunity to look upon these models and read descriptions of the construction fitted with patriotic pride and a sense of security. These pretty little toys, bright and brilliant with their polished nickel and brass furnishings, bristling with guns which represent tremendous death-dealing power, represent "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean." They represent our power for defense and offense against the nations of the world, when our rights are threatened or our territory invaded. They give us all to understand that the fate of peace we have been wise enough to prepare for war, and thus to make war less likely. They make every citizen feel that, manned with typical Yankee sailors, if Japan or any other nation should take us for Chinamen the originals of those battleships and cruisers would soon compel the nations of the world, upon our cities on the coasts of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, and also upon the great lakes, would have been at the mercy of the navy of the United States. To-day the people of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, Norfolk, Charleston, Mobile, Galveston, New Orleans, San Francisco, Chicago and Detroit may feel secure, no matter what international complications might arise. ness, represent the new navy, the modern conditions at sea; and our naval officers and sailors can carry our flag anywhere in such ships without a blush of shame. On the contrary our seamen can float over the waters of the world as proudly as the flag floats in the free air of heaven. Ten years ago, in old, time-worn and obsolete wooden ships, our Yankee seamen were ashamed of their craft. These little models represent a new era. It is well that they are on exhibition in the navy department, so that our people may see, at least in miniature, what has been done during a decade for the American navy.

The Apologizer for Her Father.

"Angelina," said the youth, hotly, as he entered the parlor, "it remains for you to say whether our mutual friendship shall continue or be ended here at once."

"What is the matter?" asked the beautiful girl, opening her lovely dark blue eyes to the widest extent.

"Your father has just called on me a blasted idiot."

"And you want me to apologize for him?"

"Then I cheerfully do it. Father is altogether too frank, and I have often told him that even the truth should not always be spoken."—N. Y. Press.

PLAY TIME.

For over four hundred years November 13 was observed in England as a festival. It commemorated the death of Harlequin and the accession of Edward the Confessor, by which the country was delivered from the yoke of the Danes.

The movable Christian holidays are Easter, Ascension day (ten days before Whit Sunday), Ash Wednesday, Good Friday, Palm Sunday, Pentecost, Sexagesima Sunday and Trinity Sunday. All demand for their date on Easter.

The Festival of Saint Peter and Vincula, held on August 1, was the continuance of a Roman festival in honor of the victory won by Octavius over Anthony at the battle of Actium. Its observance was continued, but its object changed by order of Theodosius.

A FORNIGHT after Easter the English formerly observed a festival called Hook Tide. It was customary for the women to go out into the streets with cords and bind the men whom they met until the latter purchased their release with small contributions of money.

The Greek holidays and festivals were very numerous. There were fifty beginning with the letter A, and besides these special festivals there were times set apart for the Isthmian, Nemean, Pythian and Olympian games, all of which were popular holidays.

Ringing Noises

In the ears, sometimes a roaring, buzzing sound, are caused by catarrh, that exceedingly disagreeable and very common disease. Loss of smell or hearing also result from catarrh. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, is a peculiar successful remedy for this disease, which it cures by purifying the blood.

Hood's PILLS are the best after dinner pills, assist digestion, prevent constipation.

The kicking against Postmaster Wilgus' new rule while the office is being repaired is somewhat premature. We are sure the new postmaster will strive in every way to improve the service and please the public. If the people want the lobby open at all times and will make their wishes known, Mr. Wilgus will surely comply with them. Let the work be done. Men have finished their contract. In the meanwhile it would be advisable for the public to keep cool and put up with a little temporary inconvenience with as good grace as possible.

DEATHS.

SMITH.—Mr. S. P. Smith died last Thursday evening at his home in Trenton of Bright's disease, after an illness of three weeks. He was at first attacked with typhoid fever, but his physicians had about conquered that trouble, when Bright's disease of the kidneys set up and ended his life in a very few days. Mr. Smith was a member of the grocery firm of S. P. Smith & Co., and was an excellent business man and a man who enjoyed the confidence of all who knew him. He was about forty years old, and leaves a wife and three children. Deceased was a member of the Odd Fellows and the Knights of Honor lodges at Trenton and had a $2,000 insurance policy in the latter order, besides other insurance on his life. The interment took place at Trenton Cemetery Friday.
